gates to the state Legion convention at Albany to ask for Decoration and Armistice Day holidays with pay for all veterans in state and municipal service.

They heard Colonel Avery Cooper, commander of the Coast Artillery 2nd Corps area, blast at youths who swear they will never "take up arms for their country except in defense of their homes."

"The best defense is an offense, and you can't take the offensive when you are defending your own soil," Colonel Cooper said.

Commander Newburg, retiring Commander Keenan, Arthur Burkander of Far Rockaway and Arthur Duffy were named delegates-at-large to the state convention in Albany. Alternates named were William E. Smith, Samuel Kirby, Russell Conklin and Herbert J. Latz.

The parade was finally started at 5:45, with the incoming and outgoing county commanders marching side by side at the head of the procession.

Mrs. Corwith Endorsed

During the afternoon the county auxiliary members endorsed the candidacy of Mrs. Doris Corwith of Rockville Centre for national commander of the Legion auxiliary. They were presided over by Mrs. Mary O'Dwyer, Queens auxiliary president.

The two-day convention program, which was preceded by the traditional 40 and 8 hi-jinks on Friday, closed with a dinner-dance Saturday evening in the clubhouse of Wilbur E. Colyer post, host organization to the convention.

The new Queens Legion commander, Police Sergeant William A. Newburg of the Bayside Precinct, has an army heritage. He was born in 1887 at Fort Totten where his father was a sergeant-major in the engineering corps.

Newburg, who was appointed to the police force in 1912, secured a leave of absence in 1918 to enlist in the transport service. He served on the U. S. S. Santa Teresa which ferried many doughboys across the Atlantic.

He received an honorable discharge and re-entered the Police Department on Jan. 11, 1920. He served as a detective in Flushing and was made a sergeant in 1925. He has been stationed in Flushing, Astoria and Manhattan precincts.

A past commander of Whitestone Legion post, Newburg organized and was the first commander of Queens Police Post. He is married, the father of three daughters and a son, and lives at 33-31 56th street, Flushing.

SOUTH AFRICAN VISITOR FETED

Thirty-five relatives from Bayside, Jackson Heights, Bellerose, St. Albans, Freeport and Newport, R. I., attended a reunion held by Frank J. Murray of South Africa at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Walsh of 37-46 82nd street, Jackson Heights, whom Murray had not seen for 42 years.

Murray, who is proprietor of a huge estate and golf and country club in Pretoria, capital of the Union of South Africa, is here on a three-months' visit with his wife and a son, Desmond, who are now touring the South and West and are scheduled to meet Murray in Queens this week. They will see both the New York and San Francisco Fairs.

A supper was served at the reunion by Mrs. Walsh.

A. B. C. Law Violation Charged To Woman—

Mrs. Sophie Burberger, 32, of 68-41 Forest avenue, Ridgewood, was held yesterday in $500 bail for further hearing Aug. 3 when arraigned in Bridge Plaza Court, Brooklyn, before Magistrate Henry Soffer on a charge of violating the A. B. C. law.

According to Patrolman Harry Steinbach of the 14th Inspection District, Mrs. Burberger described herself as the manager of the German-American Workers' Club, 348 Linden street, Brooklyn, when he called there Saturday afternoon. Patrolman Steinbach said he found a number of men in the establishment, which is not licensed to sell alcoholic beverages, with unfinished glasses of beer before them. He said he also found a tapped keg of beer in an ice-box and a quantity of bottled beer.

When he questioned Mrs. Burberger, Patrolman Steinbach said, she explained that it was the policy of the club to distribute beer free of charge to its members and that if they felt like making a donation after they had finished drinking, she accepted it on behalf of the club.

Flushing Reservist Called For Training

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The War Department today ordered Captain Warren Gault Nichols, specialist reserve, a resident of Flushing, N. Y., to active duty effective Aug. 14. He will report for training at Mitchel Field. He will return to his home Aug. 27.

Privates Joseph S. Patane and Fred A. Helms, assigned to Mitchel Field and Fort Totten, respectively, will be sent to Holabird Quartermaster Depot, Baltimore, Md., to report not later than Aug. 12 at the Finance School for attendance as students in the class commencing Aug. 14.

Sheriff Tells Flushing Kiwanis

Sheriff Maurice FitzGerald tells Flushing Kiwanis Club it's duty of police to stop any indecent show at World Fair. Shown with him at luncheon is George Mozley, club president.

Pythians End National Convention By Converging On World Fair

The Knights of Pythias, led by Supreme Chancellor E. Lee Stepp of Miami, concluded their 71st annual convention last week at Saratoga and came en masse to the Fair Saturday.

The delegates concluded their day with a brief program in the arena of the transportation area. The address of welcome to the Fair was given by Sydney G. Harnett of Brooklyn, grand keeper of records and seals.

Those attending included Jack Grocoff of Jamaica's Beaver Lodge, who is deputy grand chancellor of the Queens district. Other visitors were Abe Jeffer, past chancellor of Flushing lodge; Stephen J. Sabon of Flushing, who holds membership in the Tampa, Florida, lodge; Herman M. Levy of Flushing, past grand chancellor.

The Queens drum and bugle corps which won recognition at a musical competition during Queens Week, the opening week of the Fair, received their laurels yesterday. They headed three processions through the amusement area.

Trylan-and-perisphere awards, the Fair's official silver trophy, were given to each of the aggregations. They went to the Junior unit of Ridgewood Post, V. F. W., led by Claude Stevenson; the Junior Girls Band of Bayside Post, American Legion, under Clara F. Clarke; the Senior Corps of Elmhurst Post, American Legion, under James McNamara.

A similar trophy will be given later to the fourth winner in Queens Week, the Senior Corps of Unity Post, V. F. W., of Queens Village.

By coincidence, the winner of the twelve-day New England tour turned out to be an attractive girl who already has several "wins" to her credit. She is Hellin Corbin of Manson, Washington. She was the millionth visitor to enter the New England exhibit, and as such won the prize, an auto tour through the states participating in the exhibit.

She was dubbed by Hamilton Thomson, director of the Connecticut unit, as one of the northwest's "luckiest" girls. In 1933 she was Queen of the Manson Apple Blossom Festival. At the University of Washington she was chosen one of the most beautiful girls on the campus. For four years she has held a Washington aquaplaning record. She came to the Fair after completing a six-month European tour. She gave her occupation as "secretary."

Charles "Mile-A-Minute" Murphy, the Flushing cyclist whose exploit of 40-odd years ago is bicycle history, will be at the Fair Aug. 7 through 13 with the wheel which made him famous.

Murphy will be at the Cycle Trades exhibit in the Man Building, prepared to tell all comers how he rode at 60 per, behind a Long Island railroad train back in the good old days.

Another old-timer, Irene Castle, stepped out of retirement Saturday to participate in the Fair's dance pageant. Under a lowering sky that occasionally yielded a light drizzle, the originator of the "Castle Walk" of two decades back trod the boards of the platform in the Court of Peace where "dances of yesterday and tomorrow" were staged.

Members of the 500 Lutheran churches of the metropolitan area will gather at the Fair Saturday for "Lutheran Day." The program will include noon services, an afternoon rally and a twilight hour program.

What Makes Holes In Swiss Cheese? Farmer's Daughter Has To Answer

Here is the third list of questions in the Long Island Farmer's Daughter Contest for $200 and the title of official hostess at the Mineola Fair this fall.

Remember, girls, half the contest is dependent on correct answers to the questions; the rest will be decided by the personal attractiveness of each entrant.

The winner will be selected by the board of judges, named by the Queens-Nassau Agricultural Society, sponsors of the Fair. Neither the Long Island Daily Press nor the Long Island Star-Journal have any hand in the naming of the winner.

Enroll today for that cash prize and the honor of reigning as queen over traditional Long Island's oldest county fair, by mailing in your name, age and address, together with a picture of yourself in your comeliest pose to the Contest Editor in care of this paper. Do that today.

Save your answers until the entire list of questions—24 in all—has been published. Then send in your complete answers to the Contest Editor in care of this paper.

Any Long Island girl between the ages of 15 and 30 can win fame and fortune in this contest if her father or mother can qualify as a farmer by raising something else besides old Harry. There are no entry fees or charges of any kind.

Here is the third list of questions, devised by Locke James, instructor at the State Institute of Applied Agriculture at Farmingdale. They are printed now to afford pretty city slickers a chance to study up and compete on an equal footing with their country cousins.

Here they are and they are not all as silly as they sound:

13. How does a chicken chew its food?
14. What makes the holes in Swiss cheese?
15. When is a good time to plant winter wheat?
16. What does a potato grower use for seed?
17. How would you keep chickens from flying over the fence?
18. Why does a milking stool have only three legs?

George E. Valley Jr. To Teach At Harvard

George E. Valley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Valley of 149-60 45th avenue, Flushing, has gone to Harvard University to become an instructor in physics and continue his research work.

Valley received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Rochester last month. He is an honor graduate of Flushing High School, class of 1931. He attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology and completed the course in 1935, finishing with high honors. From there he went to the firm of Bausch and Lomb in Rochester where he served as a research physicist; then to the University of Rochester where he became a teacher of physics while studying for his Ph. D. degree.

PRISONER FACES GAS THEFT CHARGE

Caught in the act of siphoning gasoline from an automobile in Bayside, according to police, Thomas Daly, 21, of 104-49 198th street, Hollis, was arrested early today. Another man who was helping Daly, police say, escaped.

Robert Dayton of 206-10 42nd avenue, Bayside, was coming home from work when he saw Daly and another youth, he said, siphoning gas from an auto parked in front of 42-05 206th street. He telephoned police. Patrolman Victor Kirschner responded in a radio car.

A rubber hose and two 5-gallon containers were seized alongside Daly, according to the charge against him. He was lodged in the Flushing police station for arraignment today. The auto is owned by Ruth Schutt of the 206th street address.

Coronan Arrested As Auto Parker

Jack Aronoff, 23, of 53-18 111th street, Corona, was arrested early last night by Patrolman Malcolm Rush of the Newtown Precinst and booked on a charge of violating traffic regulations.

He is accused of standing near the curb in front of a vacant lot at 111th street and 53rd avenue, Corona, and soliciting automobiles for parking. He was to be arraigned in Flushing Court today.

Trying To Block Law Doesn't Pay, Maspeth Ironworker Learns

It doesn't pay to question the authority of a policeman in making an arrest. Steve Paliwoda, 35, and iron worker of 61-58 56th road, Maspeth, found that out last night much to his sorrow.

Residents in the vicinity of 61-30 56 road, Maspeth, telephoned the police at about 9:30 last night to say that a man was creating a disturbance in the street and asked the police to do something about it.

Patrolman Thomas McAndrews of the Maspeth Precinct responded in a radio patrol car and was arresting Eugene Giannoti, 36, a bricklayer, of 61-58 56th road, Maspeth, for using loud and boisterous language, when Paliwoda interfered, declaring that the policeman could not arrest Giannoti.

So Patrolman McAndrews arrested Paliwoda for interfering with an officer while making an arrest. Both men were booked at the Maspeth Precinct and were transferred to Hunter's Point pending arraignment.

ELKS THRIVE IN OREGON

SALEM, Ore. (U. P.)—Elks (of the forest variety) have increased in Oregon from 3,441 in 1934 to 16,702, according to the latest statistics.

'DAN' ENTERTAINED BY BAYSIDE POLICE

Bayside police yesterday entertained Daniel Johnson, 11, one of the smallest children ever brought to that stationhouse as "lost."

Dan, as he wanted the boys in blue to call him, is about three feet tall, and is particularly bright. He was found wandering at 7 a. m. yesterday at 232nd street and Northern boulevard, Bayside. While he insisted he was able to take care of himself—he had 50 cents in his pocket—the police thought it best to take him in.

After chatting with Dan on the subject of travel, the boy said he had come to Queens by bus and had intended to visit some friends who lived "somewhere near the World Fair." Dan was then asked how he obtained the money.

"In the Bronx there is a large bakery which gives away bread to poor children, several times a week," he said. "I was given some bread and then I sold it to someone else."

Dan said he is in the 4A grade at P. S. 37, 87th street and Lexington avenue, Manhattan.

"My father is dead, and mother works in Philadelphia," he said.
