Mrs. Smalbach Is Installed President Of Sisterhood

Rabbi Max Meyer Conducts Ceremony in Flushing Before 250 Women

Leading Jewish clubwomen from the North Shore and state and city federations, also non-Jewish friends, more than 250 in all, saw Mrs. Jean Smalbach installed president of the Sisterhood of Flushing Free Synagogue at the annual installation floral luncheon in the synagogue social hall Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Smalbach, who succeeded Mrs. Frnees Robbins was inducted with other officers of the new administration by Rabbi Max Meyer.

Dr. Paul Klapper, president of Queens College, gave the address. He spoke of the importance of experimentation in education as a means of developing educational content and procedure to meet the needs of a changing society. "Experiment must be substituted for debate in drawing up school and college curriculums and devising suitable teaching processes. Unless this is done, education will not progress. Education will never achieve its social promises until it places greater reliance on scientific method and less on debate," he said.

The hall was transformed into a great flower garden for the affair with elaborate stage and window treatments which aroused the admiration of visitors. Rabbi Meyer in inducting the officers paid striking tribute to the place the Sisterhood holds in the life of the synagogue, morally, financially and spiritually. "The Sisterhood is the synagogue," he said

He installed the officers as follows: Mrs. Jean Smalbach, president; Mrs. Herman Meyer, first vice-president; Mrs. Edward Trauner, second vice-president; Mrs. Jesse Spier, treasurer; Mrs. Martin Wiseman, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Zwicker, coresponding secretary; Mrs. A. Levy, financial secretary.

Rabbi Meyer paid a personal tribute to the reitring president, Mrs. Frances Robbins. "She has the best wishes and the genuine affection of us all," he said in dwelling on her devoted and unselfish work for the Sisterhood and the synagogue.

In inducting the new president, Mrs. Jean Smalbach, one of the best-known and most affectionately esteemed clubwomen in the entire borough, city and state, he referred to her manifold gifts and great qualities. "She has a rare ability for unusual accomplishment," he said.

Mrs. Smalbach in her acceptance address expressed her desire as president "to be a religious and educational helpmeet." She pledged herself to carry out all the obligations of her office to the best of her ability, both within the synagogue, and in relation to the various federations.

Mrs. Robbins in stepping down from the presidential chair paid eloquent tribute to the loyal support given her by officers and members, and said the Sisterhood would grow in service and as an inspirational power with the years.

Dr. Klapper was introduced by Mrs. Philip Goldfarb, chairman of the luncheon and wife of the president of the congregation of the Free Synagogue. He developed his "Don't debate; experiment," theme in application to modern education.

He pointed out that the older educational supervision was authoritative and placed sole reliance on the superintendent of a school system or the president of an institution. With the growing tendency for democratic administration, control was divided between the superintendent and his administrative staff, and between the president and the faculty.

Accompanying the introduction of a democratic procedure, the method of debate was introduced into educational discussion. "Unfortunately educational disputes are settled too frequently by the outcome of the debate rather than by data experimentally derived. The method of debate is the method which seeks triumphs rather than truth," he said.

Stressing that scientific method must be resorted to in modern education, he added: "Whever there is a question of change in method of education, in content or administration, suitable experimentation should be devised, so that the final decision can be supported, not by opinion, but rather by demonstrable fact."

Seated at the speakers' table were Mrs. Samuel Jaros, honorary president; Mrs. Isaiah Frank, honorary vice-president; Mrs. Louis Rosette, president of the New York State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, and Mrs. Jean May, past state president; Philip Goldfarb, president of the congregation; Mrs. Goldfarb, general chairman of the luncheon; Mrs. Jean Smalbach, president-elect, and fourth vice-president of the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations; Dr. and Mrs. Max Meyer, Mrs. Frances Robbins, retiring president; Dr. and Mrs. Paul Klapper, Mrs. Henry E. Meininger, president of Flushing Council of Women's Clubs; Mrs. A. M. Kopelman, president of the North Shore Unit, Women's League for Palestine. They were introduced by Mrs. Goldfarb.

Philip Goldfarb, president of the congregation, paid tribute to the work of the Sisterhood, and voiced his special admiration of the beautiful floral setting.

Past presidents of the Sisterhood welcomed were Mrs. Jaros, Mrs. Meyer Boskey, formerly of Great Neck; Mrs. J. C. Holman, Mrs. Laurence May, Mrs. M. Ellis Spear, Mrs. Herman Meyer and Mrs. Samuel Mandelbaum.

Mrs. J. C. Holman, program chairman, introduced the guest artist, who gave a brilliant program. Mrs. E. Mercuse, violinist, and E. Maestre, 'cello, with Mrs. A. Levy at the piano, played selections from the work of Beethoven and Mozart. Richard Deneau, tenor, sang "I Love Life" and "The Flower Song."

Mrs. Elise Summers had entire charge of the floral decorations. Mrs. Herbert Bachenheimer had charge of reservations.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Objectives vs. Methods

By ERIK McKINLEY ERIKSSON

Professor of History, University of Southern California

For over five years, the New Dealers from the President down have been busily engaged in spreading propaganda in support of their objectives. The Chief Executive himself has stated that the "people" understand and approve these objectives and are not particularly concerned about the methods used to attain them.

The weakness of such statements is that they are based on pure assumption. Because people, listening to the President speak, cheer him or because they vote for him or persons seeking to ride into office on his "coat tails," it is assumed that they understand and approve.

To learn how little the average person knows about the objectives of the New Deal, all one needs to do is to question any typical group. Such a procedure will reveal that various individuals have hazy notions of what it is all about but probably not one will be able definitely to state the objectives. Some will say that the purposes are "to curb the wealthy," "to distribute wealth," "to improve the condition of the lower one-third," "to take care of the unemployed," "to curb the utilities," and so forth.

This illustrates the tendency to confuse the purposes of specific measures with the broader objectives of the New Deal. These, as stated by the President at various times, are the promotion of relief, recovery, reform and social security. Of course, assuming that they understand them, the people can be expected to approve these objectives in general. This does not mean that they necessarily must approve of all the individual measures taken to carry out the program.

There is a vast difference between the general objectives and the methods of the New Deal. Undoubtedly, the average American understands the methods even less than the objectives. Because one can see something commendable in the avowed purposes of the New Deal, it is not necessary to close one's eyes to the means used to realize thes. purposes. The end does not justify the means.

Briefly stated, the methods of the New Deal have been similar to those used during the World War. As in the war period, the federal government has vastly extended its power by ignoring the reserved rights of the states. At the request of the President, much of this centralized power has been delegated to him and to administrative agents. Scores of new agencies have been created, adding almost 300,000 new employees to the federal payroll. Finally, a great propaganda machine has been operated to popularize the program and win votes in support of it.

Is it not time for the people to wake up and find out what is going on? Americans seem to have forgotten the old adage, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." It is not the duty of a political party but of all Americans who appreciate their heritage to curb the use of war time methods in time of peace.

Every step taken to increase the power of the federal government and to enlarge the authority of the President and of administrative agencies is a step in the direction of what has recently come to be called the "totalitarian state." The dictators who have come to dominate the European scene have invariably gained their positions by stressing desirable objectives. In so doing they have so dazzled the people that the methods being used have been ignored. This lesson should be taken to heart by all Americans.

The Old Gardener Says:

Tuberous-rooted begonias can be counted upon to give ontinuous bloom throughout the Summer. They are excellent for use as Summer bedding plants, or as ribbon borders, particularly in partial shade. They may also be grown in window and porch boxes and make attractive pot plants. Started plants, which can be set out at any time up to the middle of the Summer, are obtainable from greenhouse growers in most localities. These begonias require a rich soil, and grow best if mulched with old manure after they are well started. If manure is not available, a chemical fertilizer can be worked into the soil and a mulch of peat moss applied.

Museum Will Close During Summer Vacation

It was announced that the summer activity program of the Children's Museum of Queens has been cancelled and that the museum will be closed during the director's absence for the country until early in October.

Although a complete activity program of arts and crafts, sciences, and music groups, had already been announced, the board of trustees decided at a recent meeting to call off any children's activities this Summer while the director is studying abroad. Although previously the policy of the museum has been to keep its door open the year round, this year it will adopt the policy of other municipal museums and discontinue its education activities during the vacation months.

Donald A. Shelley, director, has announced that the regular winter activities for children will begin immediately upon the opening of the museum early in October. All previously organized groups in arts, and crafts, sciences, music and other fields will be reorganized and a completely new program offered.

Mr. Shelley is sailing June 30 on the S.S. Columbus and will study for three months in France, Germany and Switzerland.

Consolidated Edison Pays 200th Dividend

Consolidated Edison Company is today paying the 200th dividend on its common stock. The dividend record of the company has remained unbroken since it was organized as Consolidated Gas Company of New York in November, 1884. Dividend number one was paid June 15, 1885, and dividends were paid semi-annually until 1892. Since then they have been paid quarterly without a break, although in varying amounts.

Eleven of the 96,443 common stockholders receiving dividend number 200 also received dividend number 1 and have received every common stock dividend paid by the company during the intervening 53 years. One of these eleven stockholders is a church in Troy and another is a hospital in New York City.

Judge to Probe Noise Charges At Fair Ground

Contractor Appears in Flushing Court in Reply To Resident's Complaint

Charged with maintaining a public nuisance in the operation of a pile-driver on the World's Fair site, the contracting firm of Healy, Giordano & McDermott, Inc., 101 Park Avenue, Manhattan, was arraigned Tuesday before Magistrate Hockert in Flushing Court.

The complaint, signed by Edward Grady, hardware dealer, 138-20 Elder Avenue, Flushing, alleges that on June 2 and at half a dozen dates prior to that, the company operated a pile driver beginning at 5 a. m. and continuing throughout the day.

Mr. Grady set forth that the noise from the machine was injurious to the "comfort, repose and health" of a considerable number of residents in the neighborhood where he lives.

Two of Mr. Grady's neighbors, Mrs. Margaret F. Thorne, 132-23 Sanford Avenue, and Alfred S. McLaughlin, 138-40 Elder Avenue, signed supporting affidavits.

The firm was represented by John Healy; a partner, also present at the informal hearing were Charles W. Merritt, representing the Fair Corporation, and James A. Gallagher, attorney for the U. S. World's Fair Commission.

Mr. Gallagher told the court that it would be quite difficult for anyone to state where the particular noise came from, as there are half a dozen pile drivers in operation on the Fair site.

He also said that a sewer is being constructed about a block from the site and that the noise of driving the steel pilings travels much faster than does the noise from the drivers on the Fair grounds.

Mr. Grady told the court that Mr. Giordano, another member of the firm, had informed him, "We start work at 5 o'clock in the morning."

Magistrate Hockert adjourned the hearing until Friday morning. He said that in the meantime, he would pay an early morning visit to the Fair grounds to determine the extent of the noise.

Airlines Speed World Flight

LONDON (U.P.)—Travelers soon may be able to fly round the world by normal air services in 20 days.

The possibility is foreshadowed in plans now being perfected by Imperial Airways and their associated companies throughout the empire. The plans are the most ambitious air developments yet devised for a girdle round the earth.

The first important move will be made within the next month or so when Mercury, upper unit of the flying-boat Mata, will start the regular transatlantic service between Foynes, Eire, and Botwood, Newfoundland.

In the other direction, new type flying-boats will leave Southampton and blaze an empire trail across Egypt, Palestine, Irak, Arabia, India, Burma and Malaya to Australia.

The new Tasman route will then be established, flying-boats making the 1,100-mile sea crossing between Brisbane and Auckland, New Zealand.

From Auckland flying history will be made when the giant boats take off on a new route across the Pacific Ocean to San Francisco From there the route will extend to Vancouver. Here, land planes will wait for mails and passengers and be flown by trans-Canada machines to Montreal, where they will link up with the Atlantic services.

By August, eight of the secret 25-ton flying-boats will be delivered for a series of test flights before they are put into regular service in the "round the world" program. They will have new type tanks, improved wireless equipment and many other up-to-date devices.

Officers of Girls' League Installed

Mission Group Received In Church on Hill

The recently formed Girls' League for Service, a junior missionary group, was formally made a unit of the Church on the Hill and the officers were installed by the pastor, the Rev. Bradley J. Folensbee Sunday morning at the church.

Mrs. Arthur E. Resch was installed as supervisor. Officers installed were Miss Nancy Safford, president; Miss Virginia Waterman, vice-president; Miss Anita Koster, recording secretary; Miss Barbara Dee Folensbee, corresponding secretary; Miss Florence Ames, treasurer.

Three of the officers, the Misses Nancy Safford, Barbara Folensbee and Anita Koster will leave July 11 to attend the Northfield Conference at Northfield, Mass., July 11.

Adults attending will include Mrs. Bradley J. Folensbee, wife of the pastor who will represent the Women's Guild of the Church on the Hill and Mrs. Resch who will be one of the camp hostesses. Mrs. Resch is a member of the Board of Domestic Missions and a member of the Young Women's Department of the Reformed Church in America.

Flushing Driver Sent to Hospital For Observation

Robert Chatham Committed by Judge Wieboldt Following Auto Charge

Although arraigned only on traffic charges, Robert Chatham, thirty-nine, 45-55 Bowne Street, Flushing, was committed to Kings County Hospital for observation Monday.

Chatham, a WPA inspector, is the motorist who laughed in Queens Felony Court Sunday when informed he "might easily have killed some one" in a mile-long chase earlier in the day in Long Island City, where his car struck seven other autos before being overtaken by police.

Chatham explained then that he had received a telegram at his home that morning, saying his mother was dying in Newark, and that he was speeding to her bedside.

Monday his wife appeared with him before Magistrate Gustav Wieboldt and told the court that she knew of no telegrams having been received at their home Sunday.

They are the parents of two children.

Mrs. Chatham consented to her husband's commitment for observation.

Magistrate Wieboldt, in similar cases, has previously recommended suspension of drivers' licenses where the holders have failed to measure up to ordinary standards in responding to questions put to them in court.

It is one of the few occasions, however, that a commitment has been ordered in a traffic case in Felony Court.

Score one for Auntie!

A young woman who had forgotten an aunt's birthday was riding on a street car a few days after the event and happened to meet the very same aunt.

The niece apologized for her thoughtlessness, explaining that she would have called in person if it had not been raining. This was too much for the aunt, who retorted, "Well, the telephone was dry!"

Score one for Auntie! As a matter of fact, regardless of the weather, a telephone call is a nice, personal way to remember a birthday or anniversary. It is particularly appreciated by persons living in another town or city. And you'll likely be surprised to find out how little it costs to send your voice across the miles, especially at the low rates in effect to most points every evening after seven and all day Sunday.
